

"NICE LEGS, DR. KAMRAN!"

Technological breakthroughs provide relief from leg pain, varicose & spider veins

Thanks to my friend Charlie Robertson of Marmalade Frog Creative Advertising, I hear this line quite often nowadays and I will be honest with you, it does make me blush every time. But what a wonderful thing it truly is to hear that, I must admit.

I believe venous insufficiency, varicose veins and spider veins have been ignored for many years. And, unfortunately, physicians often tend to minimize things they don't understand or know little about.

Well, the times have changed. Technology once again has prevailed. We can now adequately diagnose venous insufficiency. Now that we can treat this disease effectively, we can finally provide real results. For example, a person who has hidden their legs from the public view for years can now enjoy living a normal life, such as wearing skirts, shorts or a swimsuit on the beach.

So often, the symptoms are more health related and not just cosmetic. And, seldom do people realize that these common symptoms can be signs of venous disease. Some of the symptoms are: heaviness, tired, throbbing legs or swelling in the legs, night cramps, burning and stabbing pain.

Having dedicated my entire life to the art of medicine, travelled several continents and studied in some of the top medical institutions in the world, I never thought one day I would put the majority of my concentration in the treatment of this disease. I feel it takes a physician and a dedicated team of professionals who are at the forefront of the treatment of venous disease to provide people with the best possible results.

The satisfaction I get from treating venous disease as an office procedure, with no cutting or bleeding and no scarring, plus having such an excellent team helping me achieve this, is the best gift God could have given me.

"Nice legs, Dr. Kamran" is fun to hear, but the most rewarding for me is "Healthy Legs, Dr. Kamran!"
